Sunday Morning 6

Thanks to all who have prayed for me concerning my shoulder surgery. I successfully had surgery on the 20th of April and things are progressing on schedule. I will be in the sling full time until at least the 1st of June. After that I will continue to wear it in public until September, so as to alert people to try and not accidentally bump into me. I Will start therapy 2 x a week on May 15th. The first month will be nothing more than stretching to keep my shoulder from freezing up. Please keep the prayers coming, as all who I have talked to have said therapy is where the “fun” starts!

Praise the Lord I am still able to move around the house AND I am left-handed so I am able to do a little more than most in my situation. I am still able to hold worship services! I cannot drive for the next 6-8 weeks so unless I am driven by someone, I will be spending a lot of time at home where I hope to get a lot of studying done! I have been praying over a couple of sermon series and hope to develop them during this time.

Knowing I will be “sidelined” for a while is tough. All my life I have NEVER been one to sit still or not be doing something. (For those who know me, I just heard you say amen to yourself! LOL) This is especially true now knowing I have kingdom work to do. My prayer lately has been this: Lord, if I can’t go to them, bring them to me. That has brought my focus down to those around me. I have mentioned all of my neighbors in the past but my focus over the next few months is going to be on them. God has already heard my prayers and set an appointment! A few weeks ago, we had a sudden large heavy snowstorm hit. We have a gazebo on our back patio, and before I could get out to brush the snow off the top, it collapsed from all the weight. I bought a pergola to replace it and was doing the inspection to see where and how to place it on our deck. Upon doing so, I discovered that our deck was in need of what I thought was some minor repair. As I started inspecting, the damage became more apparent. I am in need of a total deck replacement. All the wood underneath is rotten. I spoke with Andres who lives across the street, and he will be over next week to do the work. He is my Hispanic neighbor who just replaced the flooring in the house a few months ago. He is a devout Catholic. Please pray that I can have a clear salvation conversation with him. I look forward to updating everyone on the progress in next month’s newsletter.
