Sunday Morning 6

We had a lot to be thankful for in the month of November. We held a church thanksgiving meal the week before thanksgiving and had 3 families in attendance for the services and the meal. We discussed plans for the future and how they could potentially become involved.

The week of thanksgiving we visited my son in CA so we could watch his football playoff game. We were also very fortunate that his roommate Sammy (whom I have mentioned in the past) joined us for our Thanksgiving day meal. He had many questions about religion he shared with me. I simply shared Peter's "Pentecost" sermon in Acts 2:14-36 with him. I explained how Peter used the OT book of Joel and made many references to the words and prophecies of OT patriarchs and prophets to make his case that Jesus WAS the Messiah. In the end, he still had questions but he said it was a lot to think about. Please pray truth will win out over tradition in his life. He admitted he didn't know much about the different Jewish traditions and beliefs his family practices. It's just the way he has grown up doing it.

We were also fortunate to spend a good bit of time with my son's girlfriend Kaylee. She is a new believer in Christ and is just learning about the Bible stories most of us have known since we were little kids. She had never heard of Sampson, Jonah, King David, Daniel in the lion's den etc. I was able to give her the abridged version of some stories and challenged her and my son to study and learn more in depth about them.
